

Queen Bee, 2026

Ambra Castagnetti

Queen Bee, sculptures

In her work, Ambra Castagnetti investigates and dissolves the feelings of unease that emerge from the experience of everyday life. Through sculpture, painting, installation, and video, the artist develops a research practice centered on natural, feminine, and animal forms, redefining her relationship with reality. Queen Bee, 2026 is crafted with Breccia Medicea dell'Acquasanta and beehive, with a base in Rosso Rubino marble.

The artist employs a plurality of materials and media, from ceramics to metals, from marble to wax, and moving images, constructing a layered language that explores the complex tension between the poetic and the political, between reality and fiction. The result is a fluid and ever-changing imaginary in which the intimate dimension intertwines with the collective one, opening up new possibilities for reading and interpretation.
